British Fighters Strike at Gateway to Libyan Plateau; Duce Makes Claims
Purge Is Made
Antonescu Eliminates All Guardists; Rumania Is Restless

(By The Associated Press)
Britain's desert troops were reported in battle contact today with Italian defenders of Derna, Libya, where a swashbuckling Connecticut Yankee planted the Stars and Stripes in the war on Barbary pirates 136 years ago.

Derna, 95 miles west of fallen Tobruk, is the gateway to the Mediterranean seacoast plateau en route to Bengasi. Observers in Cairo predicted Fascist Marshal Rodolfo Graziani might make a "stand" defense on the plateau to guard his base at Bengasi, 100 miles to the west.

Premier Mussolini's high command said Italian forces inflicted "considerable losses on enemy armored vehicles in lively fighting" east and south of Derna.

The Italian air force, it was said, "bombed, strafed and machine-gunned strong artillery and mechanized concentrations" of the British army of the Nile pushing westward.

It was at Derna, on April 25, 1804, that Gen. William Eaton, Dartmouth-educated former United States Army officer, led a riffruff army of six U. S. Marines and 500 Sheiks, Arabs, Berbers, Greek mercenaries and Nubian Blacks to wrest the port from the control of Yusuf the Bloody.

Some 2,000 miles to the southeast of Derna, other British troops were reported to have driven a wedge halfway across Italian Eritrea in a drive toward the Red Sea. Cairo dispatches said the British were within striking distance of the Italian town of Agordat, an important railroad.

No Raids Upon London
In the air siege of Britain, London's millions had their seventh consecutive night without an after-dark alarm, but despite bad weather, RAF raiders streaked across the channel before dawn to attack the industrial city of Hannover, in north central Germany.

Hittler's high command acknowledged four killed, six injured in the raid, in which several hundred incendiaries were dropped.

Willkie Arrives in London

Wendell L. Willkie, defeated Republican candidate for president, makes a characteristic gesture as he tells newspapermen in an interview in a London hotel that he wants to see as much "as I can of English production and the social and economic life of the country." Willkie was driven to the hotel after a two-plane flight from Lisbon. (Picture by radio from London to New York.)

Horticulture Show To Open; Morgan Will Give Address

President of State Society Is Niagara County Man; Some Sessions to Be at City Hall

"East will meet west" when the New York State Horticultural Society convenes its annual eastern meeting in this city on Wednesday. Percy R. Morgan of Lewiston, Niagara county, in the extreme western end of the state, who recently was elected president of the society, will deliver the opening message to the Hudson valley meeting at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

President Morgan was elected at the recent meeting of the society in Rochester, succeeding J. Wessel TenBroeck, Jr., of Hudson. TenBroeck presided at the Rochester meeting. Morgan, like TenBroeck, is an extensive grower of fruit and will bring to the eastern meeting his first-hand observations of the fruit industry upstate.

The meeting will continue through Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with the annual dinner taking place Thursday evening in the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Another feature of the meeting will be the first report of the joint fruit committee set up during the past year by the Horticultural Society and the State Farm Bureau Federation. This committee, including five appointed by each group, is charged with reviewing present conditions and trends in the industry with a view to developing an immediate and long-time program. A similar committee which was set up in western New York delivered its first report at the Rochester meeting and was continued for another year.

The sessions will be held in the Kingston City Hall, instead of the armory as in past years. The armory is now being used exclusively for military purposes. Exhibits will be housed in the Broadway auditorium and in the municipal garage.

Workmen are busy today at the auditorium on booths for exhibits of fruit at the convention. Other booths will be erected at the municipal barn on East O'Reilly street for heavy machinery, tractors, sprayers and similar equipment.

Sorenson Captures New York Ski Title At Rosendale Hill

Telemark Ski Club Plays Host to Star Field of Jumpers and 3,500 Sports Enthusiasts

Ski pictures will be found on page 8

New York state's Class A ski jumping laurels, which for several years have not been held by a native of the state or a representative of a state ski club, yesterday at Rosendale's meet before 3,500 spectators went to Connecticut.

In a resumption of the event, canceled two years for lack of snow, colorful Harold Sorenson of the Norfolk Ski Club met all-comers in "too much snow" and came through the meet with 224.3 points.

Sorenson, a veteran of hundreds of title jumps from local to national and 1936 Olympic contests, made jumps of 131 and 134 feet. The Class B crown was awarded to George Sherwood of the Lake Placid Sno-Birds Club. Sherwood made 217.6 points in a field of 22 "B" entries and jumps totaling 129 and 131 feet.

Rand Presses Victor
Although receiving a total of four extra points in the final judging, Sorenson was hard pressed by Jay Rand, 18-year-old sensation from the Lake Placid Sno-Birds. Rand had a leap of 133 in the first try and 134 in the second. His first mark bettered Sorenson's by two feet. Rand received 220.7 points for second place in Class A.

Bucking a fierce crosswind all of the skiers experienced difficulty in making long leaps of record-breaking performance. But with the exception of one competitor the athletes showed a marked increase in the second round of leaps. Rand and Sorenson hiked their previous leaps to 134, the top distance for the day.

Taking third place in the Class A event Art Devlin, another 18-year-old star from Lake Placid, amazed the fans with his exhibitions. His leaps were 125 and 129 feet. Judges awarded him 220.3 points. A soldier from Fort Dix, N. J., Harry Wagner, representing the Telemark Ski Club, took eighth place.

The winner of last Sunday's Bear Mountain meet, Jay Rand, was in all probability the star of the championship meet even though he failed to win yesterday's crown. The youngster displayed beautiful form and even made some of the old timers look in amazement. He and Sorenson missed breaking and tying by three feet the hill record set by Nick Nyland.

Talent in Class B

A host of young talent saw action in the Class B Division. Although a few spills were taken by the skiers the competitors made it known that their place in the division would be short-lived. According to a few ski experts a number of Class B athletes were jumping in the style and precision of any Class A entrant.

One of these was Harry Morse of the Brattleboro Outing Club of Vermont. Morse trailed the leader, Sherwood, by a few feet in each attempt. His first jump tied the winner at 129 feet. Morse dropped off two feet in his second try, however, while Sherwood proceeded to gain two. Sherwood's form also topped that of his nearest rival.

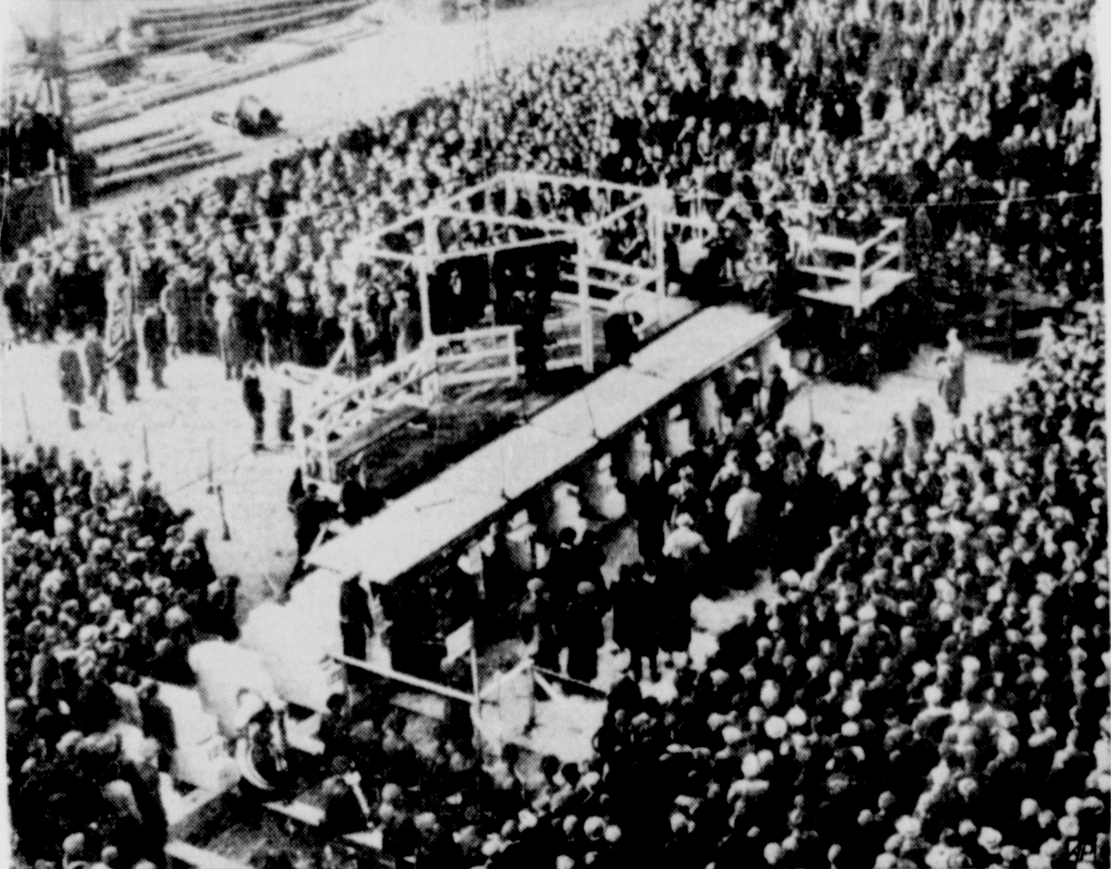

Andy Svensen, representing the Norsemen Ski Club came in third in the Class B. Svensen came through with leaps of 117 and 125 feet. Last year Andy was one of the New York city policemen who took care of Crown Prince Olaf when he arrived in the metropolitan area.

In all of the events the competitors were trying desperately to overcome the weather, both the hard wind and the new snowfall which made skiing conditions a little difficult. However, all of the contestants performed to their best ability in the jumping of Sunday's meet.

Judges at the meet were John Victorian of the Swedish Ski Club of New York, Annar Sweeney of the Telemark Ski Club and Bjarne Langset of the Norsemen Ski Club.

Johannsen Is Hurt
Telemark's intrepid jumper, Harald Johannsen, one-eyed jumper and native of Norway, was painfully injured yesterday in a trial jump when he fell on the outrun and was tossed about on the hill. Although his wounds were confined to scratches and bruises and Johannsen desired to compete in the Class A jumps, the judges ruled him out.

Keel Fused for New U. S. Battleship

This was the general scene in the Philadelphia Navy Yard as Rear Admiral Adolphus E. Watson, commandant of the yard, fused the keel of the 45,000-ton battleship Wisconsin in a ceremony witnessed only by workmen and a small group of civilian guests. Admiral Watson told his audience that "we must work longer hours cheerfully, as though at war, because the need is just as great now." The ceremony was watched by Joseph F. Heil, son of Governor Julius T. Heil of Wisconsin, who was unable to be present.

Coudert, Barton Named as Likely For Simpson Post

Kenneth F. Simpson, 45, Dies of Heart Attack After Serving 20 Days as Congressman

New York, Jan. 27 (AP).—State Senator Frederic R. Coudert Jr. and former Rep. Bruce Barton were mentioned today as probable Republican choices for the congressional vacancy caused by the death Saturday night of Rep. Kenneth F. Simpson.

Simpson, 45, died of a heart attack at his home after serving just 20 days in the 77th congress as representative from Manhattan's 17th "silk stocking" district—an office held by Barton until the latter's recent unsuccessful bid for the senate.

Chief accomplishment of Simpson in his brief tenure in his first elective office was the introduction in the House of a substitute for President Roosevelt's "lease-lend" bill for aid to Britain.

Leader for six years of the New York County Republican Committee, Simpson's political career spanned 24 years in which he gained national recognition as a stormy but effective partisan.

Helped Willkie

He helped swing the 1940 Republican presidential nomination to Wendell L. Willkie and in 1937 aided Thomas E. Dewey in becoming New York's district attorney.

In later factional battles with the Dewey forces, Simpson lost his place on the Republican national committee, and recently resigned his chairmanship of the county committee in another intra-party squabble.

Governor Herbert H. Lehman is expected to call a special election shortly to fill the congressional vacancy.

Mrs. Simpson received hundreds of messages of condolence and public expressions of sympathy, including tributes from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie, who is in London.

The President's wife sent this telegram: "I have just heard of your husband's death, and the President and I send you our deepest sympathy in your sad loss."

Voter, 106, Dies

She Was for Willkie
Williamsville, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP).—Funeral services were planned today for Mrs. Harriet Marie Bolles, who, at the age of 106, voted in last November's presidential election.

Mrs. Bolles died yesterday at the Plover Home for Aged where she had lived for 14 years.

"I guess I am interested in too many things to grow old," she told newsmen on her 106th birthday last Sept. 24.

Her 93-year-old sister, Miss Sarah Crandall, also a resident of the home, recalled that last November "she went to the polls and, as always, voted the straight Republican ticket."

Other survivors are her two sons, Maj. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, U.S.A. retired, of San Antonio, Tex., and Charles Bolles, Normal, Ill.

New Snowstorm Breaks Over City

Seven-Degree Temperature Is Recorded as Fall Begins Early Today

With a temperature of seven degrees another snowstorm broke over Kingston early this morning while the city forces were still busy digging out from under the 11-inch fall of Friday night, and snow continued falling in the city throughout the morning hours.

The weather report said that snow would continue falling throughout the day and on Tuesday.

Skilled Labor Is Big Factor Before Motor Producers

Real Test of What Role U.S. Automotive Factories Will Play in Defense Is Due in October

Detroit, Jan. 27 (AP).—The problem of finding sufficient skilled labor to man all the equipment the automobile industry will put into production on the national defense program is more likely to affect its capacity for normal factory output than any single factor next fall.

The industry's ability to keep figuratively astride two horses—swinging into a huge volume of production for aircraft, tanks, aviation engines and guns on the one hand and meet a demand for new passenger cars expected to continue to mount with increasing buying power—will come in for its initial test about next October.

That will be the customary beginning of the new model car year. According to present indications, it should also mark the point at which the vast amount of preparatory work looking to mass production of defense equipment will begin to show substantial results.

Some of the aircraft parts and sub-assemblies which the Big Three of the automobile industry—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler—are to make for manufacturers of huge bomber planes will be in delivery before that date, but the program in its major phases probably will not begin to tax the automobile industry's production magic much sooner.

Kaiser Observes His 82nd Birthday At Doorn and Says He'll Stay There

Doorn, The Netherlands, Jan. 27 (AP).—The white-bearded wood-chopper of Doorn, World War Emperor Wilhelm II of Germany, observed his 82nd birthday quietly today, serenely content in this refuge to which he fled after abdicating more than 22 years ago.

His life in exile has been affected only slightly by the new war raging about him and intimates say he has no thought of leaving Doorn.

He himself is fond of saying: "Old trees cannot be transplanted."

Although he is hale and hearty, the ex-kaiser's birthday schedule probably was the most modest in his long, eventful life. His second wife, Hermine, who shares his exile, was with him but only three other near relatives were able to come from Germany for the event.

They were his fourth son, Prince August Wilhelm (Auwil); his grandson, Prince Franz Joseph, and Franz Joseph's wife, Princess Henrietta, daughter of Hermine, who calls the aged ex-monarch anywhere.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Hearings Begin With Hull's Testimony

War Aims Sought

Wheeler and Nye Ask Resolution for Public Statement

Washington, Jan. 27 (AP).—Secretary Hull was reported to have told the Senate foreign relations committee today that long efforts to obtain mutual understanding and cooperation between the United States and Japan had been virtually fruitless.

Committee members said the secretary of state devoted much of a two-hour closed session to a discussion of relations between the two nations. They reported that he traced the background of American policy in the Far East, but did not outline any future course.

Hull, the first witness in the committee's study of the aid-to-Britain bill, had asked permission to present some testimony behind closed doors. He explained that he wanted to present information which might bear on the bill "but which should not be made known to every nation."

Under President Roosevelt's definition of warring "democracies," China might become one of the beneficiaries of the lend-lease legislation.

In asking that he first be permitted to testify privately, Hull said that publicity "would not be compatible with the public interest and might be injurious to our national security."

Chairman George D. (D-Ga.) said the committee would resume open hearings at 2 p. m., (E. S. T.) today.

Spectators Are Few
Less than 100 spectators were present as the gray haired secretary of state took the stand. He recalled that he had testified on the same bill before the House foreign affairs committee.

Nineteen Senate committee members, seated around a large table, listened intently as Hull spoke.

The House committee also met in executive session today in an effort to conclude its study of the legislation after two weeks of hearings. It first heard confidential testimony from Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and was scheduled to hear Gen. George C. Marshall, the army's chief of staff, later in the day.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), a member of the Senate committee, told reporters there was no intention on the part of opposition senators to delay the lease-lend legislation.

He said he believed two weeks of hearings should be "quite ample," even though the bill's backers declared they would be "doing well" if testimony ended in that time.

Resolution Is Asked

Coincident with this, Senators Wheeler (D-Mont.) and Nye (R-N.D.) announced they were ready to introduce a resolution requesting President Roosevelt to call on "all belligerent nations to proclaim publicly their respective war aims and peace conditions and any and all secret treaties for disposition of territorial spoils."

The resolution was considered a move in the opposition campaign against the present lease-lend legislation.

Air Bill Is Passed

The Senate passed unanimously and sent to the White House today legislation authorizing a $300,000,000 expenditure for modernizing the fleet's air defense.

The chamber acted within an hour after the Senate naval committee had approved the legislation.

Witnesses at the hearing testified that increased protection against air attack had been shown to be necessary because of lessons learned from the European war.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the naval committee said he would call up later authorizations totaling $909,000,000 for expanding navy shipbuilding and ordnance works and building 400 small naval craft, which also had been approved by the committee earlier in the day.

Car, Truck Sales Continue
Detroit, Jan. 27 (AP).—Retail sales of new passenger cars and trucks are continuing at high levels, according to latest sales reports from several of the leading producers. Chevrolet, which has led in production volume most of the last decade reported that its retail sales for the second 10 days of January numbered 30,479 vehicles. From January 1 to 20 retail deliveries totaled 58,978 units.

CROSSING ELIMINATION MONEY

Governor Lehman continues his efforts for diversion of sixty million dollars in bonds from grade crossing elimination projects to highway purposes. He asserts that it will be of greater benefit, economically and in saving lives, than if used to eliminate remaining railroad crossings.

The Governor points out that fifty-five persons were killed at grade crossings last year, while on the highways there were several thousand lives lost.

It would seem that with this huge loss of life on the highways that the first move upon the part of the Governor and the lawmakers would be to stop diverting the enormous sums collected in motor licenses and gasoline taxes from highway maintenance and construction to other purposes and schemes. Automotive funds are for highway purposes. If these funds were put to use on the highways there would not be the yearly slaughter and the roads would be adequate for our defense and military purposes.

Despite the fact that there is a greater toll on the highways between automobile and automobile than at grade crossings between train and automobile, sentiment has not changed. In the City of Kingston the Broadway crossing and other crossings in the city remain a hazard to life and limb. The same public sentiment is expressed today as it was over a quarter century ago.

Dangerous railroad grade crossings throughout the state should be eliminated.

SOLDIER-MECHANIC

Not only is this a mechanized war, but the training of mechanical recruits closely parallels the training of drafted soldiers.

In New York City, for instance, defense training already operates on a 24-hour day. There are three shifts in the public vocational schools, one class of mechanics entering as another leaves. Men who were once familiar with machine work but have gone stale in idle years are enlisted to brush up in courses of 30 hours a week. Welders are graduated and ready for the factories in 100 hours and aviation mechanics in 400 hours. "Working at top speed," says Time, "U. S. public vocational schools by next summer will have delivered to defense factories and airmen nearly 500,000 mechanics."

This would be at the rate of a million a year, and the later figure will be largely increased as the scope of the work is enlarged. Several other cities are working along the lines that are followed in the metropolis. Such opportunities may be given, before long, in every community that has an industrial training school.

It is evident that this is going to be a nation of skilled mechanics. And we are not likely to have too many of them. There is no more useful class of citizens, and perhaps no more intelligent class, in our American life.

LAUNDRESS-CITIZEN

Many true stories of naturalized American citizens are both touching and inspiring. Such is the story of the late Katherine Bohm.

Miss Bohm came to the United States from Germany more than 50 years ago. All her life in America she was a laundress, working hard for small pay. She was thrifty and managed to save a little regularly through the years. When she died, she left an estate of $6,500. Most of it she gave to a trust fund in the city where she lived.

The first money from her bequest, $500, is now about to be used. It goes to a society for the blind, to buy artificial eyes, glasses and dental work for humble folk who are handicapped for lack of these things and unable to pay for them.

Many citizens of greater wealth have done less for their fellow men and have shown less appreciation of their blessings.

INSTALLMENT TAXES

The tax authorities of Irvington, N. J., struggling with a serious problem of tax delinquencies of long standing, has hit upon a scheme for collection of which much is hoped. The mayor announces that taxes may be paid in weekly installments of as little as 25 cents. Three collectors will be at work regularly. They will carry receipt books similar to those used by insurance companies making house to house collections.

Irvington has 7,000 delinquent personal tax accounts totalling more than $100,000. If everybody made the minimum payment allowed it would take more than a year to clean up those back taxes. After a short period of the weekly doorbell ringing, however, many citizens may decide to clean up their whole tax debt at once. That should speed the job without making matters hard for the others who can't scrape up a lump sum. Anyhow, it is sensible to adapt tax-paying methods to taxpayers' needs.

WAR AND/OR POETRY

There's something to be said, as an American library man suggests, for the viewpoint of the Italian army officer who, captured by the British on the Libyan sands, told his captors:

"For all I care about this desert, you may have it! I am a poet."

Still, quite a bit of good poetry has been written, from one age to another, and in one country and another, by fellows who just sat on the sand in the sun, and scribbled.

Maybe Mussolini should have allowed his soldiers time out for that in the African campaign. And a poetic truce might have been arranged with the British, so that whenever a soldier on either side felt a poem breaking on him, he could just hoist a flag with a harp on it, and sit down and get it off his chest.

If we called Hitler simply "that bad man" it would sound like nursery talk, but as Winston Churchill says it, you can smell sulphur and brimstone.

There would be less war if statesmen and military men would spend more time on the sea shore, observing what happens to everything sooner or later.

Foreigners can never understand our American government—it's too simple.

USUAL SYMPTOMS OF HEART DISEASE

A patient consulted his physician about his heart as he had been reading about the symptoms of heart disease. "I get out of breath very easily. Is that a sign of heart disease?" "That is a sign of heart disease, but it could also be caused by eating too much acid food, reducing your weight and causing an almost acid condition of the blood and tissues. Breathlessness could also be caused by an obstruction in the nose which prevents enough air getting to the lungs. In those who are overweight getting out of breath easily is very common."

"I also have a pain at times under my breast bone. Isn't that a sign of heart disease?" "Pain under the breast bone is a sign of angina pectoris—a form of heart disease—but this pain can be caused by gas in the stomach or even gas in the large intestine a section of which crosses the body from right to left just a few inches below the heart. It also can be caused by a nose obstruction. Just being excited or emotionally upset can so interfere with proper breathing that pain under breast bone occurs."

"What about murmurs? Murmurs occurring with the first beat of the heart and disappearing with exercise are not considered symptoms of heart disease. Murmur occurring with the second beat of the heart, when heart is receiving blood from the lungs and the veins, is considered a definite sign of heart disease. While an enlarged heart is considered a sign of heart disease, it is known that some individuals are born with a large heart or a small heart either of which may not be greatly affected as to size by exercise or work."

In an article on heart disease in the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Tinsley R. Harrison, Nashville, Tenn., in describing the most important form of heart failure—the "congestive type"—says, "No single sign of congestive failure is specific (a sure sign of heart disease) as all the manifestations of heart disease may, at times, be produced by other conditions."

The thought, then, is that as the usual signs of heart failure can be produced by other conditions, a thorough examination by the family physician and dentist may reveal cause of the symptoms.

TOO MANY SAVIOURS

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—Tourists' guide:

I once knew a lad who always described as "golly-whopping" anything of such magnitude that it made the eyes bulge. I'm sure if he could come to Washington today and see the Smithsonian Institution's new exhibit, he would sink in a quick breath and say it was "the golly-whoppingest thing I ever saw."

For three months, behind locked doors, the men and women of the Smithsonian labored in the great exhibition hall. When the "closed" sign was changed for one reading "Open to the Public" the other day, they had completed a task which probably will put the Smithsonian on more "visitors' must" lists than it ever has been. Briefly, the exhibit is the story of life for the last half-billion years, and just as a fillip, a glance into the future. This peek at things to come is proof positive that the men of the Smithsonian are far from unimaginative graybeards. They may do a lot of boring over crusted skulls and fossils, but they also have a Wellesian flair that would put both H. G. and Orson to shame.

Realistic Space Ship

They have cooked up a realistic space ship which appears to be zooming along some inter-planetary highway. As the pilot looks back, he can see the changing scene of the earth as the continents and oceans revolve into the sunlight. Before him, brightly lighted, is a chart of his course. It is accurate to an inch. Smithsonian mathematicians spent days in the realm of higher mathematics to produce it. The pilot is receiving television reports. He carries in his holster a deadly gas "to repel attacks by space cruising bandits." (Won't we ever get rid of those fellows?) The Smithsonian experts' went the rocket ship boys one better, for this one, I'm told, is powered by oxygen "bombs."

By a series of scale-model dioramas, the Institution has traced the "Ascent of Man" from his beginnings. These show early man in his natural habitat, with the trees, grasses and animals of prehistoric times. All has been reconstructed on the latest scientific conclusions, with every thing as accurate as it possibly could be made. To give all possible credence, there are exhibits of prehistoric skulls. The one of old Joe Cro-Magnon, who seems to have died with a toothy grin that the centuries haven't erased, should be labeled: "To be dreamed about only after Welsh rarebit and hot mince pie."

Meteorite in Color

In the geological section, the exhibit has what it refers to as its great collection of meteorites. Not being geological, I couldn't get stirred up about these hunks of iron and such that burned themselves out bombarding their way through the earth's atmosphere. But even this section is enlivened by a "color transparency" of a fiery meteorite plunging along where only space ship pilots ought to be. And here also are the world's largest topaz and some new minerals discovered in the gold and silver mines of Mexico.

In its century of progress, the Smithsonian has unearthed something like a 100,000 new plants and animals and the gentlemen there know what they are drawing when they sketch a tree of life like the one which is the center of the biological exhibit. Here also are some of the Institution's rare specimens, like the fish that carries its eggs in its mouth and another that disposes of that old one about "the fish out of water" by packing up frequent-

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

"Kingston High School" was officially adopted as the name of the new high school at a meeting of the Board of Education on Friday, September 24, 1915. There had been some agitation to have the new school named Kingston Academy, but objection was made by some of the prominent residents of the city, including Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., who urged that Kingston High School be the name adopted.

The new school opened for the first time in the fall following the summer vacation in 1915, and it is interesting to note that the school's first football team led by Captain Watson Wheeler won its first game on October 2, 1915, by defeating Albany High School by a score of 18 to 6 at the Athletic Field.

Kingston lined up with Hallinan, Gregory, Pehleman, Tewilliger, Wheeler, Bernstein, Gill, Joyce, Palisi, DuMont, Johnston, Relyea and Campbell.

Kingston and Ulster county has always been proud of the historic associations that grace the history of the state's first capital, and one of the men who had probably done more to arouse and preserve the history and historical importance of Ulster county was Benjamin Myer Brink, who died in his home in Katsbaan on Sunday, October 3, 1915.

Mr. Brink will be recalled by older readers as the editor and publisher of the magazine Old Ulster, which was first published in January, 1905.

This magazine, during the years it was edited by Mr. Brink published many historical sketches and was read by those who took an interest in the history of the city and county.

It was also in 1915 that the Social Service Bureau first came into existence in Kingston, and at a meeting of the board of directors held at the court house on September 13, 1915, the bureau was organized by electing Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck as president; John D. Schoonmaker and Mrs. Scott Gillespie, vice presidents; William F. Rafferty as treasurer, and Mrs. Laura MacMillan as secretary.

Mrs. MacMillan was well acquainted with social work, having served with the Federated Women's Clubs of the city, which had charge of the Federation House on lower Hasbrouck avenue.

It is also interesting to note that in the history held on Saturday, August 28, 1915, on the Senate House grounds by the Civil War Veterans of Ulster and Greene counties to celebrate the 50th anniversary of peace, was marked by the adoption of the suggestion made by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck in the course of his address that a suitable memorial be erected in Kingston to the memory of General George H. Sharpe.

"Life for Life's Sake" by Richard Aldington

I put away Richard Aldington's "Life for Life's Sake" for a couple of weeks after reading it, because I did not know why it gave an impression of weakness. Now it seems to me this is because it was written from the position of a traditional English gentleman.

Mr. Aldington calls his product a book of reminiscences and not an autobiography, and thus excuses a certain amount of reticence. Even yet, since the author is by no means an octogenarian, a great many people mentioned are still alive, and that is further excuse to be gentle. Yet other people have written about the period (the last 30-odd years, that is) as well and as vitally. What nobody else could have done was to explain Aldington, and this one thing is exactly what Mr. Aldington has omitted to do. He tells some things about himself, but he remains a two-dimensional figure just the same. I once tried to interview the gentleman, and the interview did not come off for precisely the reason the book is unsatisfactory in general, though fascinating in many of its parts. To wit, professional reticence.

Yet, I enjoyed "Life for Life's Sake." For one thing, it begins in a period almost as remote today as the Golden Age of Greece. This is the period before 1914, when for all but a few war was just a chimera out of the past, and the world was certain to go sailing along on a sea of dividend checks and bond coupons. The period blew up like Big Tom, and here Mr. Aldington skips a few years, doubtless because he has told his war story in "Death of a Hero," not to mention a good many poems. The anarchic Twenties and the muddled Thirties follow, and Mr. Aldington seems bitterly determined to write about them without giving himself away.

Yet he gives others away while trying to maintain an impossible reticence about himself. You can miss the point of D. H. Lawrence only by deliberately ignoring it, and Ford Madox Ford comes out wonderfully. So with H. G. Wells, James Joyce, T. S. Eliot, Ezra Pound, Norman Douglas and a good many others well known and less well known. As is usual with the best of this temper, the author's persistent restraint often has the opposite effect to that intended. The reader is sometimes led to supply the material represented by imaginary asterisks, and sometimes he supplies too much.

Lindbergh's Appearance at House Committee Hearing Might Well Have Been Labeled, 'Berlin Papers, Please Copy'

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 27.—If there is such a thing as fair play and a sense of humor left in the war-torn precincts of Europe, then the phrase "Berlin papers, please copy" might well be utilized to attract the attention of the press of Nazi Germany in connection with something that has just happened here in the national capital.

A noted flyer by the name of Colonel Lindbergh came to Washington, went to a committee-room of the house of representatives of fair play if there is such a thing any more. Letters by the thousands—all identical in text—have just been addressed by the council to mayors of cities and other officials, newspaper editors and business men in Germany, Italy and Russia. The mail is being sent by way of Siberia so it cannot be touched by the British censorship. The message does not boast that America's system is better than any other but merely states the facts concerning the operations of our democracy with emphasis on freedom of speech, freedom of worship, and freedom of the press. It says in conclusion:

"Such are the facts we want to know. We have written to you about them, for we know you are interested in having the truth. If there is any additional information you would like to have about how democracy works in the United States, please write to us. Even if you cannot ask questions, tell us somehow that you have heard from us. It will give us great pleasure to be assured that you have received this report on the health of our nation."

It will be interesting to see how much "courage" the residents of Germany, Italy and Russia are permitted to exhibit with respect to this simple letter. The council for democracy says in a formal statement that the purpose of the communication is to test the international postal agreements whereby the governments of the United States all the propaganda they wish by mail via Siberia and the Pacific ocean whereas America does not insist on the same privilege in Germany for American mail.

It is contended by the council that the United States, after the evidence obtained through this test is available, should then deny to the dictatorship states the freedom to send their propaganda into the United States by low mail rates. The proposal will be disputed on the ground that America can well afford to send an example of tolerance, even of propaganda, so long as it is plainly labelled as to source. American alertness, or what the Nazis call "courage" exists to such an extent that it can be relied upon to expose and refute the propaganda of the dictatorship governments. That's another privilege of democracy.

Income Tax

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX NO. 1

Gross Income Determines Liability

There are two arresting facts in the 1940 income tax law. First, the basis for determining liability for a return has been changed from net income to gross income. Second, the exemptions have been lowered from $1,000 to $800 for a single person, and from $2,500 to $2,000 for a married person or head of a family.

Every citizen or resident of the United States must file an income tax return, if single, or not living with husband or wife, and his or her gross income is $800; or if married, and his or her gross income is $2,000; or if their aggregate gross income equals or exceeds $2,000. It matters not where the net income of such persons may be, or if the return, by reason of allowable deductions, the personal exemption, or credit for dependants is non-taxable, the gross income of all such persons must be reported to the government.

TO GET MONEY'S WORTH

Memphis, Tenn. (AP)—Sam Fox, negro iceman, has about decided the used car he bought in 1916 for three dollars is costing too much. True, it has carried him to and from work every day for 24 years as well as doing duty as a tractor. And it gets 35 miles to the gallon on a mixture of gasoline and coal oil. But it's the upkeep that bothers Sam. He had to buy some distributor points at three cents apiece.

Geologic Fault Is Giving Aqueduct Engineers Trouble

Rondout Waters, Quarter Mile Below Surface, Pose Problem for Tunnelers

A geologic fault, which occurred ages ago, in the rock structure at the foot of the Shawangunk mountains, in the valley at Wawarsing, is making all kinds of trouble for the engineers and workmen of Samuel R. Rosoff, Ltd., contractor for that section of New York city's Delaware aqueduct.

This particular section of the aqueduct joins Shaft 2, northwest of Wawarsing and Shaft 2A on the side of the mountain southeast of Kerhonkson.

The aqueduct is being driven both ways from the two shafts and about 6,000 feet of tunnel remain to be driven, according to Fred W. Stiefel, chief engineer for the Rosoff Co.

The work progressed well enough until tunnel men working south from the Wawarsing shaft reached a point approximately at the entrance from Route 209 of the road leading to Dr. Ford's place. At this point, some 700 feet below the surface of the ground, struck an underground water condition that is said to be the worst ever encountered by tunnelers in the east and that has held up progress of the aqueduct at that point since last June.

Has Terrific Force
Due to the fault in the rock construction at that point, the rock formation is crushed and broken throughout its some 250 feet of vertical thickness, so that water, seeping through it and the 450 feet of quicksand and gravel that lie above, from the Rondout creek which runs through the valley, shoots out with terrific force as soon as the drills of the drill runners come through into the faulty section.

The first drill that broke through into the underground "reservoir" was shot back out of the hole and into the driller's face, knocking him down. Further attempts met with the same result and water would shoot out of vertical drill holes as high as 60 feet. After trying to work through a smaller section, eight feet square, instead of the full diameter of the tunnel, they had gone but a short distance when the flood of water was pouring into the tunnel at the rate of 2,100 gallons a minute. Allowed to run, to see what would happen, it reached a rate of 2,880,000 gallons a day and at the end of a month the flow was increasing instead of diminishing.

The standard engineering practice of shooting cement and water, under high pressure, into the broken rock formation was tried and so far about 45,000 bags of cement, at 60 cents a bag, have been used in trying to overcome the difficulty.

Engineer Stiefel said that morning that just now they are using a new plan of attack, involving the tunneling of a 10-foot drift, with a seven-foot barrel and a bulkhead and progress is being made.

Cost Is Staggering
It is estimated that so far perhaps half a million dollars have been expended in the attempt to drive through this faulty zone, a distance of some 500 feet. How much more it will cost, before and if the present plan is completed, is a matter for conjecture.

Workmen in the tunnel had a scare a month ago when the power plant failed temporarily and with the flood of water pouring into the tunnel the six pumps, with capacity of 6,000 gallons a minute, ceased to function. The workmen kept their heads, however, and succeeded in closing the heavy steel door which had been built across the tunnel for such an emergency. Others closed the ventilating pipe leading into the heading and also the drainage pipe. 4,000,000 pounds against the steel door within a few minutes, but it was not long before the power plant was going again. The pumps were once more at work and the crisis was over for the time being.

So far workmen on the other end of the tunnel, coming down from Shaft 2A, have struck no unusual difficulties.

American Rubber Experiment Jells

(AP) Feature Service

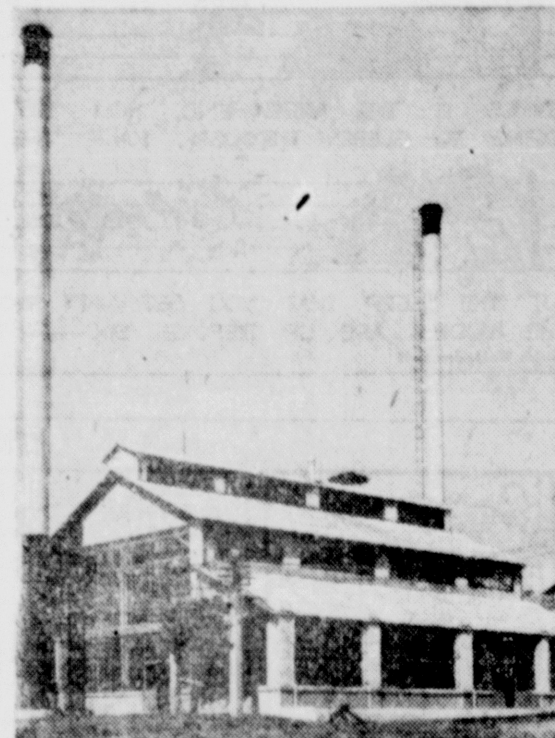

Fort Motor Company spokesmen say that after 12 years and investment of $12,000,000 commercial production "on a small scale" was started the past season on the company's big experimental rubber plantation in Brazil. The company seeks through grafting to develop a rubber tree resistant to adverse conditions of the Western Hemisphere and thus help restore Brazil to leadership in rubber production. The plantations embrace 2,500,000 acres, including 22,200 under cultivation, and support 8,000 people.

WORKERS' HOMES shown here are made of Brazilian palm. Year-round temperature range is from 76 to 96 degrees. This is on the plantation called "Ferdlandia."

WORKER opens a graft flap to determine if the bud has "taken." If the bud is alive and prospering, it is removed with a section of the tree and planted.

POWER PLANT serves a radio station, refrigeration units, a water purification system and other facilities besides providing power and light for homes. Schooling and medical and dental care are provided.

SPECIAL CUT for tapping has replaced old method of puncturing latex vessels with an ax, a practice which left deep scars on jungle trees like this. The experimenters want to develop a strain which resists leaf disease.

Roosevelt Has Cold

Washington, Jan. 27. (AP).—President Roosevelt cancelled several engagements today and went to bed to nurse a cold. White House officials said he was taking precautions, more than anything else, and probably would be all right tomorrow. Mr. Roosevelt went to the executive offices this morning but returned to the White House living quarters around noon after complaining to assistants that he felt a little "achy" and that his sinus was bothering him somewhat. Major General E. M. Watson, presidential secretary, said Mr. Roosevelt hoped to get up for dinner tonight and might even get in some work in his study this afternoon.

Hearing Is Set

Inning for Taxpayers

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27. (AP).—Governor Lehman's new state budget will be subjected to a public hearing within three weeks after submission to the legislature tonight. Legislative leaders, who have predicted the 1941-42 financial program will be "somewhat lower" than the present $393,500,000 budget, said today taxpayer sentiment will be tested as soon as possible, probably the week of February 10.

Reaction of the economy-plagued Republican majority to the Democratic executive's budget was expected by party chiefs to determine whether the session would be "short and sweet" as Democrats hoped, or long and quarrelsome as were the past two legislatures upset by "battles of the budget."

Coudert Receives Copy Of Teachers' Membership

New York, Jan. 27. (AP).—The membership list of the New York State Teachers' Union (AFL) was turned over today to a joint legislative committee investigating charges of subversive activities in the city's schools. The action ended a three-months' wrangle.

Counsel for Charles J. Hendley, president of the union, gave the list to a representative of State Senator Frederic R. Coudert, Jr., vice-chairman of the committee, but only after there had been considerable bickering over legal procedure.

The committee subpoenaed the membership lists last October 9. Hendley refused to yield them. Court action followed and Hendley finally was adjudged in contempt. On the basis of his continuing refusal, a warrant for his arrest was signed last Friday.

Senator Coudert said yesterday that if Hendley surrendered the list the committee "will move for the cancellation of the warrant of arrest."

Trainman Is Missing In California Wreck

Oroville, Calif., Jan. 27. (AP).—Wrecking crews toiled today to raise a huge locomotive and baggage car from the bed of the Feather river where they plunged yesterday when the luxurious Exposition Flyer of the Western Pacific railroad crashed into a landslide.

One trainman was believed to have lost his life in the accident. He was James E. Curry, 61, San Rafael, baggage man on the Chicago-to-San Francisco train.

Nearly 200 passengers on the train were severely jolted but unhurt when the engine hit the storm-loosened slide and a 500-ton boulder on the tracks in Feather River Canyon, about 248 miles northeast of San Francisco, at 4:20 p. m.

Engineer Fred Loucks and Fireman Eric Hecker, both of Portola, saved their lives by jumping, as the big mountain-type engine left the rails and plummeted 40 feet down the canyon.

degrees on Saturday afternoon the mercury began dropping that night and the lowest temperature recorded that night by the official city thermometer at the city hall was 10 degrees. The highest point reached that afternoon was 26 degrees.

The public works board placed all of the snow equipment at work Friday night at 6 o'clock and the men worked all that night and all day on Saturday plowing the streets while hand shovelers were busy Saturday removing 280 truckloads of snow from in front of churches and fire stations in the city.

The three snow loaders were placed at work Saturday night at 11 o'clock and worked through the night until 9 o'clock Sunday morning, removing 1,081 truckloads of snow from the three business sections of the city.

Acting Superintendent Max Oppenheimer said today that he had urged merchants and residents living in the three sections where the snow loaders are at work to shovel the walks off clear to the curbs as it would make it much easier for the snow loaders to remove the snow from the gutters. If the walks were not cleared to the curb edge it would leave a high ridge along the top of the curbs.

Mr. Oppenheimer said that 24 dump trucks had been assigned to work with the snow loaders while eight trucks had been assigned to crews of hand shovelers. The snow fighting forces, he said, numbered 120 men.

It was planned to place the three loaders again at work tonight, and motorists were requested not to park their cars at the curbs after 11 o'clock tonight in the sections in which the snow loaders would work.

Householders are also urged to cooperate with the water department in shoveling the snow away from fire hydrants in front of their properties. The water department has a crew of men at work clearing away the snow from the hydrants, but it is a difficult job to cover the entire city.

No fires were reported in the city since the storm of Friday night, and no serious auto accidents have been reported to the police department.

Magic Spring

by ALLEN EPPES

YESTERDAY, it seems that although David loves Polly, and Dr. McNeill loves Margo, the girls are not quite so well agreed. So David and the Doctor have decided it might be a good idea to trade girls, in appearance, for a while. Now Dr. McNeill and David are looking over David's old inn, wondering whether it could be turned into a sanatorium, and where the money would come from if it could.

Chapter 23 Great Plans

AS they drove out of the yard, Warren said: "I'd like to have a good look at the inside of the Inn, David—just in case."

"That's all right with me," said David. "We'd better do that first, before it gets too late. No lights out there, you know. We can swim afterwards."

He sped the rattling little car up to its limit, which wasn't anything very breath-taking, and not long afterwards the Inn came into view.

Parking close to the wide porch, David got out his keys. "All set for the tour, gentlemen?" he asked.

"All set," said Warren. David turned to Peter: "Suppose you go into your swimming trunks," he said. "Warren and I will have a look at the upstairs. You've already seen it at least a dozen times."

"Okay, Cousin David," Peter said. He began to unbutton his shirt. "Don't you fellows stay too long."

"We won't," David assured him. "This way," he said to Warren. "Only one floor above this, so no elevator. You'll have to use the stairs."

The two men went up the broad flight that led up directly from the broad and roomy lobby. And soon they were moving along the upper hallway.

"There are thirty-six bedrooms in all," David explained. "Twelve on each side of the hall over the main part of the building, and six on each side of the hall that runs out over the dining room. But only a dozen have private baths."

"Oh, well, that doesn't matter," said Warren. "If we manage to make a sanatorium out of it, we won't need so many private baths." He stood for a moment looking into one of the rooms, and then said: "What does matter, though, David, is the fact that every one of the rooms gets the sunshine at sometime during the day."

"Yes," said David. "Aunt Julia said Uncle Fred was a sun worshipper, and wanted his hotel to be built so that no room was without its share of old Sol's friendly light and warmth."

"All of which adds to the building's value as a sanatorium," said Warren.

On the way downstairs David said: "I believe you are interested in the old place."

"Of course I am!" Warren laughed. "Are you just realizing that?"

"Gosh," David said, "wouldn't it be fine if we could get hold of some money and start things going?"

"Fine is hardly the word for it. Anyway, old Doctor Ben wants for half interest in his practice is a flat one thousand dollars. If I decide to buy, I'll still have a couple of thousand left. That wouldn't go very far, but if you could match that amount, we might start off on a small scale."

"Two thousand dollars," said David, thoughtfully. "Is there really that much money in the world?"

"Sure there is," said Warren. He patted David on the back. "We'll manage somehow."

"I don't think I ever saw two thousand dollars in my life," David said. "By the way, have you gotten any report on the sample of spring water you took into town?"

"No," said Warren. "I sent it over to Portsmouth to a hospital there. I should hear within a few days."

Dining Out
PETER called to them from the porch.

"Hurry up, Cousin David, you and Doctor Warren," he said. "The sun'll be gone before we get our swim."

"Be right with you," David replied. Then to Warren: "You can start peeling—while I get my suit out of the car."

"I've got mine with me," Warren said. He took a small parcel from his pocket. "Convenient—these abbreviated trunks."

"I'll say so!" said David. He went out to the car for his own faded trunks. And in a little while he and Warren were joining Peter on the porch.

"Don't carry me, Cousin David," Peter said. "Let me walk between you and Doctor Warren. I'll make it."

And he did—and very well, too. . . .

On the way back to town, Warren said he had an idea. "You two fellows come on down to the hotel," he said, "and have dinner with me."

"Gee!" said Peter. "Eating at the hotel? Gee!"

"Why not stop by with us?" David said. "We'll give you pot-luck."

Warren said: "Just don't forget to ask me."

"I won't," said David. "We'll kill the fatted chick for you, since we haven't a calf."

"Do I look like a prodigal son?" Warren asked. "All right, the two of you dine with me. Step on it, old man. That swim has given me quite an appetite."

Upon reaching the Ardendale Hotel, and going up to Warren's room to tidy up a bit, David asked if he might use the telephone.

"By all means," said Warren. "I know Miss Angie keeps her shop open nights," David said. "Thought I might catch Polly, and tell her I'd pick her up and take her home."

"Go to it," said Warren. He handed Peter a comb. "Here youngsters, see what you can do to that cowlick of yours."

"What's a cowlick?" Peter said. "That piece of hair you've got—that tries to look like a little horn."

Peter laughed and took the comb. "I guess I'll have to put some water on it," he said. "Paste would be better!" Warren kidded.

David got the number he wanted. Polly was still at the shop. "This is David," he told her. "I'm at the hotel with Warren—Peter and I. I thought I'd stop by for you, if you weren't going home right away."

"I'll be here until nine," said Polly. "I got some supper at the tearoom. I wanted to see how that other cashier was doing."

"Did you find out?" "Yes, David. . . . She chews gum, wears too much rouge, and her eyebrows have been put on with a pencil."

"Gosh!" "I don't mean to be catty, but she did shock me—especially when she made eyes at the men patrons."

"Oh, well, forget about her, Sweetness, I'll be by for you at nine."

David hung up. "Ready to eat?" Warren wanted to know.

"Ready," said David, "and plenty of emptiness to be filled up. How about you, Peter?"

"Me, too," said Peter. "I'm all hollow."

"Then come along!" Warren led the way. The three of them went out and got into the elevator.

"Well," said Warren, when the meal was over, "here's where we part, David—to call on our respective girls."

"And thanks a lot," David said. "For the nice meal. After keeping bachelor-hall for so long, it's good to sit down to a meal someone else cooks."

"It sure was good," said Peter. "Specially that strawberry ice cream."

Warren went out to the hotel lobby with his two guests. "I'll report to you just as soon as I hear from Portsmouth," he told David.

"I'll also want to hear what you decide to do about Doctor Ben's proposition," David said.

"That'll come also," Warren promised. "I'll know better where I stand after I talk with Margo."

He looked at his watch. "Which reminds me that I'd better get into some other clothes, if I'm not to keep her waiting."

Polly Again

IN THE CAR Peter drew a deep sigh and said: "Gee, he's a swell man, isn't he, Cousin David?"

"One of the finest," said David. "I don't think you'll find them any finer."

"Except you," said Peter. "Thanks, son. I'm glad you still like your old cousin a little."

"A little? Gosh, I like you a lot. And you're not old, Cousin David. You're—just right."

"You're not bad yourself, Peter," David said. Then, when he stopped the car in front of the millinery shop, he said: "You sit here while I go in for Polly."

But Polly had seen them. She came out before David could get inside.

"I'm all through," she said. "I got off a little earlier. She came up to the car, pulled Peter's face down and kissed him. "You old sweet thing, you!" she said.

"Gosh, Polly," said Peter. "Don't treat me like I was a baby."

"Move over," David told him. "I want Polly to sit in the middle—next to me."

"Sure!" Peter said. They drove off.

And as they moved along Main Street and out to the Jenkins cottage, David told Polly about the tour he and Warren had made of the Inn.

"Is he really interested?" Polly asked.

"Interested enough to sink two thousand dollars into putting the place on the map," said David.

"Oh, David, how wonderful!"

"But," said Polly.

"But he wants me to raise a like sum," David added.

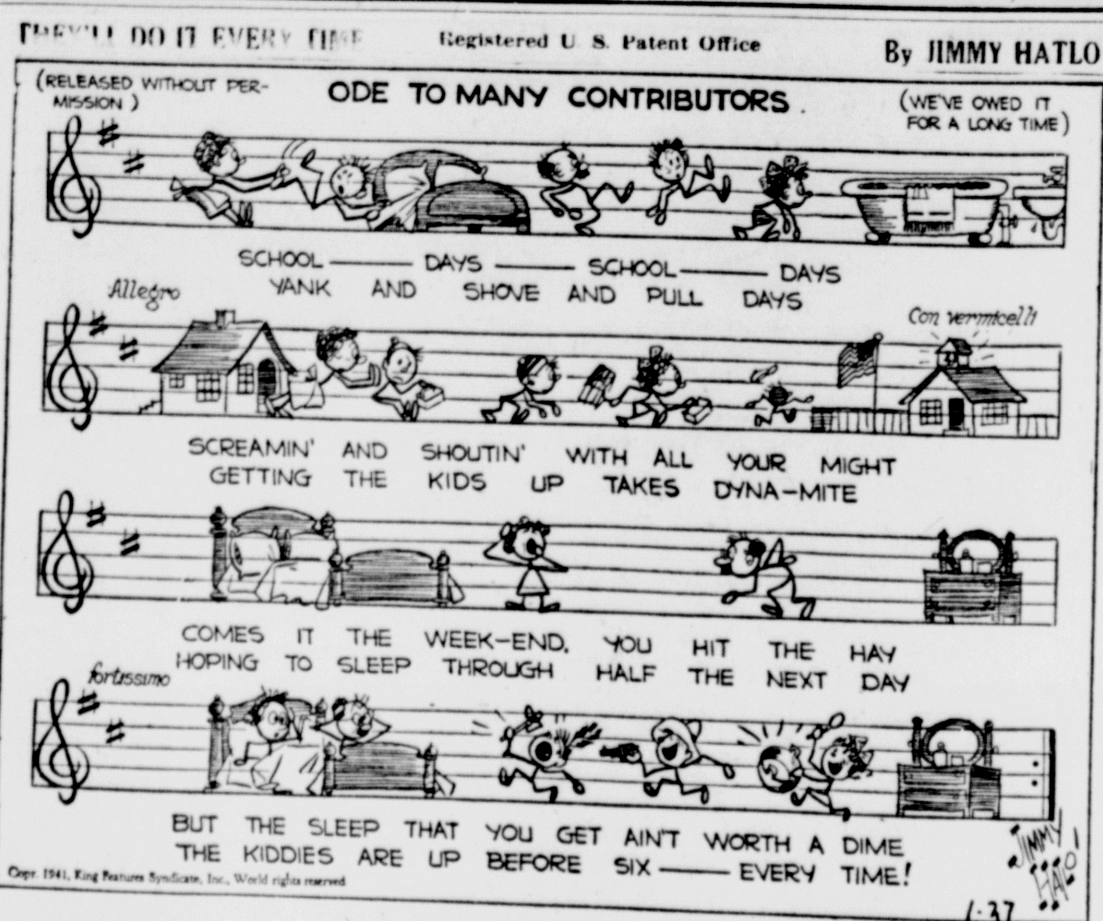

"And where ever would you find it?"

"Search me! Since dollars don't grow on trees; anyway, not on any trees I own."

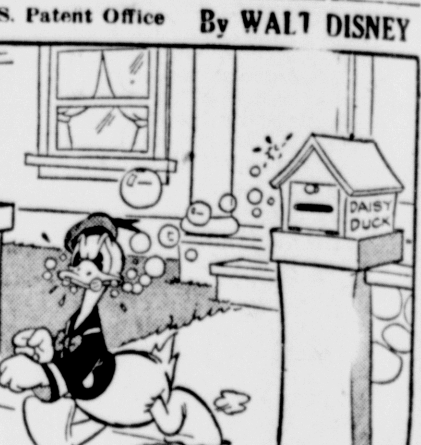

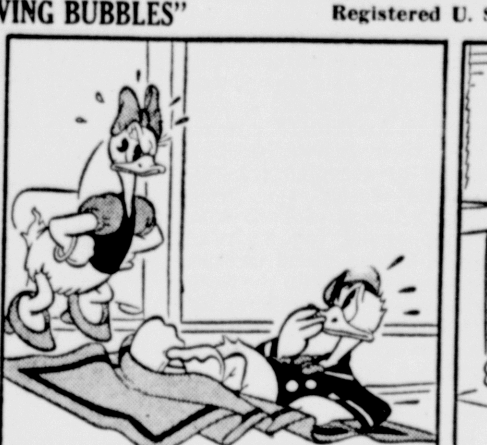

They both fell silent after that, each feeling a sense of depression.

While up at Powers' house on the hill, Margo was waiting for Warren. She was restless, more uncertain than ever before. She had gotten a letter that afternoon from a girl with whom she had attended finishing school. "Pack your trunk this instant," Margo's letter said, "and come right up to Long Island. Since the folks can't get to Europe this year, we're going to eat, drink and be merry at the old summer place. Besides, I've got a new man for you. The old summer place. How well Margo remembered it. A sprawling and ancient dwelling that looked like a farmhouse on the outside, but was the quintessence of luxury on the inside."

Ever try this kind? A clergyman was very fond of a particularly hot brand of pickles, and, finding great difficulty in procuring the same sort of pickles at hotels when traveling, always carried a bottle with him.

One day when dining at a restaurant with his pickles in front of him, a stranger sat down at the same table, and pretty soon asked the minister to pass the pickles.

The divine, who enjoyed a joke, politely passed the pickles and in a few seconds, had the satisfaction of seeing the stranger watering at the eyes and gasping for breath.

Stranger (as he recovered)—I see by your dress that you are a parson.

Minister—I am, sir.

Stranger—I suppose you preach.

Minister—Yes; about twice a week, usually.

Stranger—Do you ever preach about hell fire?

Minister—Why, yes. Sometimes I deem it my duty to remind my congregation of eternal punishment.

Stranger—I thought so, but you are the first of your class I ever met who carried samples.

When I take Towser for a walk he never tires me with his talk.

But it seems to make his heart rejoice to listen to his master's voice.

When I take Junior on his walks, he talks and talks and talks.

As blissfully he wends his way, for life is talk and play.

When I go walking with my frau she spends our time in asking how.

Her hat, coat and dress compare with others on the thoroughfare.

This is from a recent school publication:

I sneezed a sneeze into the air; It fell to earth I know not where. But hard and cold were the looks of those

In whose vicinity I snooze.

Resignation has its limitations, according to an old high school paper: An old darkey was in the habit of spending considerable time in prayer every evening. The peculiar thing about his prayers was that they were always uttered in a very loud tone of voice and were invariably finished with these words:

"Let de good angel ob de Lord cum and take poor Gumbo home!"

A knock immediately followed. "Who's dar de good angel ob de Lord cum to take poor Gumbo home?"

"Gumbo don't live heah no mo'—moved 'way long time ago."

Just So.
When everything goes crooked and seems inclined to rile, Don't kick, nor fuss, nor fidget, Just-you-smile!

It's hard to learn the lesson, but learn it if you'd win; When people tease and pester, Just-you-grin!

When someone tries to "do" you by taking more than half, Be patient, firm, and pleasant; Just-you-laugh!

But if you find you're stuffy, (Sometimes, of course, you will) And cannot smile nor grin nor laugh, Just-keep-still.

Remember this limerick? There was a young heiress called Rooker,

And the lawyer name Luke tried to "hook" her;

But the heiress was shrewd, though her question was rude— Do you look at my looks, Luke, or lucre?

"When you can't think, go for a long walk," advises someone—probably a shoe manufacturer.

Did you hear what the Idaho potato said to Lowell Thomas? "You're nothing but a commentator."

Raid Technique
Boston—This city's police believe in being not only efficient—but original.

In raiding a dice game, one of the policemen lit his pipe, blew smoke into the keyhole of the gambling room. One of the players cried "fire." All of them rushed out the door into the arms of the raiders.

Two weeks ago, one of the raiding officers gained entrance into a gambling game by "meowing" outside the door like a cat.

Or Billy the Bad?
Flagstaff, Ariz. (AP)—How do you prefer Billy the Kid? Good or bad? You can have your choice, because one of each variety has been galloping and shooting before motion picture cameras a few miles from one another in northern Arizona.

It was a wonder the two Billys—MGM's Robert Taylor and Howard Hughes' Jack Beutel—didn't ride into each other. If they had, one wouldn't have recognized the other. The real Billy the Kid, credited with killing 20 men by the time he was 21, was shot to death in Lincoln county, New Mexico, some 60 years ago by frontier Sheriff Pat Garrett, but his spirit has been riding through fiction pages and across movie screens ever since. Robert Taylor portrays the Kid as a fine fellow who fell in bad company.

Howard Hughes' "The Outlaw" filmed and shooting before Arizona Hopi country and at Tuscon, shows Billy as a "cold-blooded killer." There was no effort to "clean him up," the studio said.

Tornado With Kid Gloves

John T. Frederick, Jr., Inc., Keeps The Home Fires Burning

Shown above is the fleet of trucks and the coal yard owned and operated by John T. Frederick, Jr., Inc., at 55-63 Deyo street. Mr. Frederick has been in the retail coal business here for the past six years. From a modest beginning of one tractor-trailer and one delivery truck his business has increased to such an extent that it has been necessary to enlarge his fleet to the present large number, consisting of four large tractor-trailer trucks and four delivery trucks. Each truck has a musical horn which plays, "Keep the Home Fires Burning." This is the largest fleet of coal handling equipment in this section.

Mr. Frederick attributes his success to the handling at all times of a good grade of coal, together with the prompt and courteous service which this firm maintains, and to cutting the cost of hauling coal by increasing the size of his trucks. Although a small firm, they employ at times as many as eleven local men. The trucks are always kept in the best mechanical condition, being checked daily. John T. Frederick, Jr., Inc. are firm believers in advertising. They carry a regular advertising schedule in The Freeman and sponsor a daily program over WKNY at 6 p. m.—Adv't.

Rosendale Honors Its Queen and Crowns New State Champion

Betty Haggerty Is Named Queen At Winter Event

Rosendale Attracts Crowd
for Prelude to State
Ski Event Held at Hill, Sunday

Rosendale turned out like a town inspired Saturday night at Firemen's Hall to see the coronation of Betty Haggerty, a local girl who was adjudged the fairest of five and thereby became Queen of the Winter.

Miss Haggerty, a slender Rosendale brunette, won over Dorothy Kelly, Doris Weisler, Dorothea Zaengle and Eleanor Achenbach, who became her attendants at the coronation. The judges were Frank Elkins, ski editor of the New York Times, Vladimir Bobri, internationally known commercial artist, and Milburn Rosser, who illustrates for the New Yorker, Look, Life and other magazines.

The girls as contestants for the honor came in one at a time walking beneath an arch of crossed ski poles held by a group of skiers from the Telemark Club. Each walked the length of the hall to the stage where the judges sat. Later all combined in a procession prior to the final selection.

A crowd estimated as one of the largest ever assembled at Firemen's Hall turned out for the occasion and the program included dancing, a showing of movies on various winter sports activities, and a special dance for the queen.

The queen's crown was carried in for the ceremony by little Margaret McEvoy and several other little girls of the township added much effect to the ceremony. They were Doris Zehentner, Evelyn Krom, Roberta Hendrickson, Elsie Katonah and Janet Roth.

The girls were selected by popular vote which ended last Wednesday. Miss Haggerty led in this voting, although that fact had nothing to do with the selection Saturday night.

day night. Second in the popular vote was Eleanor Achenbach, and the rest came in the following order: Dorothy Kelly, Doris Weisler and Dorothea Zaengle. All are of Rosendale township.

Helen Raiser of Lawrenceville, although she polled more votes than any of the contestants selected, asked that her name be withdrawn, because she was under the age limit prescribed by the contest rules.

Announcements for the affair were by Joseph O'Connor, who turned in a performance which might be described as professional.

The coronation took place within a few minutes after the judges arrived at their decision. Then the queen in her long regal train walked in with attendants preceded by little Miss McEvoy carrying the crown. This coronation was made by Henry Mollenhauer, president of the Rosendale Township Association.

The original manuscript of H. Rider Haggard's "Alan Quartermain" was auctioned recently in London for $660.

Snead Wins Again

Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., Jan. 27 (AP)—Heading back into the every day workaday channels after a week-end of business and pleasure, the golfing brigade vacated Rancho Santa Fe today and headed for Phoenix, Ariz., with Slammin' Sammy Snead once again crowned winner of Bing Crosby's annual pro-amateur tournament.

The long-hitting professional from Hot Springs, Va., annexed the Crosby event for the third time in its five-year-old history yesterday with a 36-hole total of 67-69-136—eight strokes under par. He won the inaugural, one-day event in 1937 with 68 and took the 1938 event with 72-67-139.

Gain Is Reported

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP)—Only 29 per cent of the 550,000 sportsmen who obtained New York licenses in 1938 failed to take either fish or game. The remainder, the conservation department reports, enjoyed a kill of 277,903 pheasants, a gain of nearly 50,000 over 1937; 140,851 grouse, a jump of 33 per cent, and nearly 1,100,000 cottontails, an increase of 320,000. They also slew 5,515 gray foxes and snowshoe rabbits and more than 100,000 ducks and 600 geese, all notable increases. The skunk "harvest" was 34,000, against 213,000 in 1919.

Children's toys should be durable, washable or cleanable, simple, safe for use, and usable for different kinds of play.

Sorenson Captures New York Ski Title At Rosendale Hill

way won when one of his skis fell off in midair and he landed and completed his run on one stove. His eye injury was sustained in ski jumping.

Nick Nyland is working to re-instate himself as an amateur. The holder of the Rosendale hill record yesterday made several exhibition jumps.

Ulster county has taken Rosendale to its heart and this was proved yesterday by the support given the title contest, the first state event to be held by the men of Telemark. There was a predominance of Kingston and county cars in the village, while of course there were many from other points.

Sergeant James Cunningham, of the New York State Police, told a member of the Rosendale Township Association, "It's the biggest winter sports crowd we've ever handled."

There will be another jump for the Rosendale Township Association Trophy on Sunday, February 23. It will be an invitation affair so far as ski jumpers are concerned, but open to the world and his brother from a spectator's standpoint. . . The annual Telemark S. C. cross-country race will be held February 8, beginning and ending at Williams Lake. . . Following the meet the ski men and their ladies met at Williams Lake for the annual Telemark Club banquet. . .

Announcing of the meet yesterday was done by Frank Elkins, New York Times ski editor.

Bernard B. Hansson of White Plains, president of Telemark Ski Club of Rosendale, did not attend yesterday's events. He is ill with grip.

HALIFAX PAYS RESPECTS TO HULL

The first official act of Lord Halifax as he assumed his first duties as British ambassador to the United States, was a call on Secretary of State Cordell Hull (right) in Washington. Halifax has just handed a sheaf of papers to the cabinet member. "We see things very much alike," said the envoy after his talk with Hull.

Greek Word for Racetrack Means 'Fixing' in U. S.

The Greeks had a word for a race-track, but it took American ingenuity to change the Greek meaning to "fixing" a race or contest, according to the University of Chicago Press' new American dictionary.

Hippodrome is derived from the Greek words "hippos" (horse), and "dromos" (course), but as early as 1888, the American Dictionary shows, it had come to signify a contest with a prearranged result.

In 1975 a Chicago Tribune writer commented, "The ninth game between the Chicago and Philadelphia was a disgraceful, hippodroming affair."

Another American-made word, probably more popular today because of last winter's forecasts of the weakness of the blitzkrieg, is "hindsight," which originally was simply the rear sight on a gun.

First use of the word, referring to "the edges of the hind sight" of a firearm, was in 1843; more than 50 years later a writer asserted: "The Indians can't shoot nohow. They don't savvy a hind sight." Through this period the word also was part of a familiar phrase for striking or demolishing.

First use of "hindsight" as opposite to "foresight" was in 1886. C. H. Smith wrote, "But then you know a man's foresight ain't as good as his hind sight."

"Gumption" is another American invention, meaning either shrewdness or initiative. In 1831 H. J. Finn wrote, in the American Comic Annual: "Your sturgeons (sic) never redoo'd a fracture by the rules of elbow grease and gumption."

The Atlantic Club-Book, in 1834, included the sentence: "D'ye think I'm a fellow of no more gumption than that?"

Waiter Arrested On Theft Charge

Proprietor of Inn Says Money Not Turned In

Sol Chanowitz, employed New Year's as a waiter at Blackstone Inn, near Saugerties, was picked up in New York city Saturday by Deputy Sheriffs Clayton W. Vredenburg and Wesley O'Brien and brought to Ulster county to answer to a charge of grand larceny.

It was charged that he collected money from customers while employed as a waiter and then failed to turn the money in before leaving.

At his request the matter was adjourned until February 1. He was taken before Judge Charles H. Bennett at Saugerties. Trooper Arthur Reilly, of the B. C. I., and Sergeant James J. Cunningham and Trooper Walter Keefe investigated the charge made by the Inn proprietor. It is claimed the money amounted to about $150.

Chanowitz was taken before Judge Bennett Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Herbert Sogolken. Bail was set at $1,000 pending the hearing on the adjourned date.

Memory Earns Girl $500

Cork, Eire (AP) — Fair-haired, blue-eyed Irish colleen Kathleen Butterley is richer by $500 because a Philadelphia man heard her sing. Fifty years ago Captain Michael Taylor of Philadelphia heard a lyric about the American yacht which defended the Americas Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock I. The melody haunted him but he was never able to learn the exact air and words. Recently he came to Eire where, while strolling in County Dublin, he heard a girl singing the song. Kathleen learned the song from her grandfather, who composed it. She taught it to Captain Taylor and he later made her a present of $500.

Hudson Will Run Ordnance Plant For U. S. Navy

The Hudson Motor Car Co. announced today that it has contracted to build and operate for the United States Navy a $13,000,000 ordnance plant to be erected on a site near Detroit.

The land for the new plant which has been purchased by the navy department, comprises a tract of 114 acres, located at Mound Road and Nine Mile Road. This site is about five miles from the present Hudson plant.

Construction work will be started immediately under the supervision of Hudson engineers. The purchase of machinery and tools and other items needed for the plant is already under way.

The plant will consist of 400,000 square feet of machine shop and assembling space, as well as an office building and buildings for storage and other services. About 4,000 men will be employed.

When finished the new plant will be operated by the Hudson Motor Car Co. It will be devoted, among other things, to the manufacture of parts for guns and torpedoes.

According to present plans the plant will be operated at least until 1944.

At a special meeting held Saturday, January 11, the stockholders of the company approved the proposal to broaden the company's charter so as to enable to engage more fully in production of defense materials.

ANOTHER SUB FOR U. S. NAVY

The $6,000,000 submarine Gudgeon slides down the ways of the navy yard on Mare Island, Calif., completed in 14 months, several months shorter than the time usually required for construction of such a craft. Only navy yard officials, naval officers and invited guests witnessed the launching.

Eating Fish Keeps Body Slim, Authority Declares

Many people already know that fish helps keep one slim while maintaining the body's strength. Now no less an authority than Victor H. Lindlahr, president of the National Nutrition society, backs up that fact in his popular book, "Eat—and Reduce."

"Fish is an excellent food, just loaded with food minerals from the sea," the author tells in his work. "We can set aside heavy-handed custom, too, and serve fish on other days than Friday. Such a worthy food deserves to be eaten more frequently."

A study of any good calorie table reveals that fish, as a class, is low in this factor which is considered the main reason for creating fat. Yet, the Fishery Council reports, it has all the body building elements which keep one strong. This is due to the liberal amount of mineral, protein and vitamin matter in all fish and shellfish.

Weight is not the only factor considered in "Eat—and Reduce." Sluggishness usually goes with overweight and here again fish is good insurance against such a condition. It is light, is easily taken care of by the ordinary digestive juices and is ideal for those who must keep active right after meals.

Skilled Labor Is Big Factor Before Motor Producers

to the production division of the automobile industry, which already has given liberally of its executive personnel to the new organizations being set up to handle the defense production program.

The manufacturers, who cancelled the national automobile show that would have been held in New York next October to introduce new models, are currently engaged in building up a "reserve" stock of new cars. One maker has even gone so far as to lease storage space to accommodate the reserve.

ESCAPED NAZI FLIER OUT ON BAIL

Baron Franz von Werra (left), 26-year-old German flier, leaves New York's Grand Central Station with an unidentified member of the German consulate staff (right)—free on $5,000 bail on a charge of entering the U. S. without reporting to an immigration officer. Von Werra escaped from a prison train in Canada recently, was arrested in Ogdensburg, N. Y. His ears are bandaged as the result of freezing in his flight across the St. Lawrence river.

Swine Men Use Records

The best swine producers keep records to determine superior producing ability of sows and boars. Production testing of brood sows is one of the most successful methods used in Illinois, according to H. G. Russell, extension live stock specialist at the University of Illinois.

Most of the swine breed associations now have programs for recognizing superior sows and boars. Litters are usually marked, when farrowed, for future identification and the birth weight of the litter is recorded. Weights are again taken on individual pigs at weaning time, or 56 days of age.

Since this is probably the best single measure of a sow's ability to produce, the weaning weight and the size of the litter are important. A good standard for an aged sow is eight pigs, each of which should weigh 35 pounds or more at 56 days of age. A good standard for a gilt is a litter of seven pigs weighing 35 pounds each at weaning time.

Leaves Unique Will

A penniless French sailor who became the richest man in Louisiana left a strange will—the setting aside of $30,000—the income to be spent each year to solve the financial difficulties of young married couples who wish to marry but are not able, financially.

He is Julien Poydras, a bachelor himself, who died about a century ago. Because of his kindness, girls of that area are assured dowries from a fund left for just that purpose.

He was noted in Louisiana for other acts of philanthropy. The first public school in Louisiana was erected through his donation, while his endowment started the first charity hospital. He also donated a huge sum for the construction of the first almshouse in the state.

"I like the way Personal has simplified borrowing"

"I READ in the paper the other day that The Personal Finance Company has a new Application Form that simplifies borrowing. So when I needed cash to pay off a stack of old bills I stopped in one of their offices near my home. "The new Form certainly did simplify things and speed up service. It only asked questions relating to my identity and ability to make small monthly repayments. I wasn't asked to bring in co-signers and everyone was real friendly and helpful. No wonder people talk about getting CASH-plus at Personal."

YOU GET CASH-plus WITH A LOAN FROM 'PERSONAL'

These "pluses" have helped us become the largest loan company in New York:

- PRIVACY—Our new Application Form asks only about your identity and your ability to make small monthly payments. No revealing questions are asked of your employer, relatives or friends.

It's Tragic!...

No... It's Magic!

CONVERTING a pipe-lined, damp, dark cellar into a swanky bar and recreation room, figuratively, overnight, might be magic... but we know differently. It's our business to know differently!

Practically every cellar has possibilities of this sort. Let us show you what can be done with your basement... and at a surprisingly low cost!

An estimate will cost you nothing, and will not obligate you in any way. CALL US TODAY.

Berle Putnam, Prescott, Ariz., postman, spent his entire vacation walking on a 200-mile jaunt, says the American magazine. He walked along the floor of the Grand canyon from the junction of the Colorado and Little Colorado rivers, to Lake Meade at Boulder dam.

Lamps Are Tested

Fluorescent lamps have been installed on trial in police headquarters, and today one of the new lamps was being installed in the mayor's office. If the new lamps prove satisfactory it is expected that some 80 of the new lights will be installed in the various offices in the city hall as a WPA project.
